

The Science Connection: Creating Graphs with Computers

- Bringing computers into the classroom provides an abundance of opportunities for students.
- The enthusiasm generated by technology is quickly seen in the faces of the students.
- Students who may feel inhibited by certain aspects of a lesson often come to life when technology is introduced.
- Here, the students entered data from the Iron Oxide experiment into a spreadsheet program.
- They were then able to quickly create a variety of graphs.