Florida In Japanese

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8-American officials today were still holding prisoners in Japanese hands, Katsuyori Sato, Japan's latest "human shield," was held in one of several camps set up in the Pacific islands by the Japanese.

Sato, who was captured by American forces in the Battle of Midway, was ordered to take his life by the Japanese government.

Sato had been held as a "human shield" during the Pacific War by the Japanese, who used him as a propaganda tool.

Meanwhile, on the East coast, the U.S. Navy announced that it had sunk a Japanese warship in the vicinity of the Philippines.

The ship, which was identified as the "Chikuma," was reportedly sunk by American aircraft.

The sinking of the Chikuma was a major setback for the Japanese, who had been expecting to bring their forces to bear in the region.

The United States Navy has reported that it has sunk several other Japanese warships in recent months, including the "Kamikaze."
